Farmingville, NY - Supervisor Mark Lesko recently announced a display of Town historic photographs on the second floor atrium gallery in Town Hall. The display is in celebration of Long Island History Month, which was declared by the Suffolk County Clerk. The photographs will remain up until May 27. Residents can view them between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., or during the Town Board meeting on May 24 starting at 5:00 p.m. Many of the vintage photographs presented were taken by Arthur S. Greene, a Port Jefferson-based photographer who captured life on the North Shore from the late 19th century up until his death in 1955.

"This display of historic photographs provides a window back into Brookhaven's past," said Supervisor Lesko. "We have such a rich and fascinating history to share through these images and I thank Barbara Russell for making them available for all residents to enjoy."

Some of the historic photos on display include:
Railroad Bridge over the Carmans River, East Yaphank, 1899.

Sign for Tangier (presently named Shirley) located on Montauk Highway, 1915.
Gamecock Cottage, constructed c. 1876 at Shipman's Point, Stony Brook. Taken by Arthur Greene in the early 1900's.

The Pavillion at Shoreham taken by Arthur Greene.
