Farmingville, NY - Brookhaven Town Councilwoman Kathleen Walsh and Supervisor Mark Lesko celebrated a minor victory last week with Selden and Centereach community leaders after Town officials took legislative action to move the Independence Plaza redevelopment project forward. The Town, the community, and the property owners of the large shopping center, located on Middle Country Road and Boyle Road, have designated this location as a pedestrian oriented Hamlet Center and are working to include community amenities in the redevelopment plan, such as a gazebo and a village green for public meetings and outdoor social events.

"This land use plan is inspired and based on the community's vision and support," Walsh stated. "This legislative milestone is one of many, but a critical step to realizing our vision to make Selden the best it can be."
