Farmingville, NY - Acting Supervisor Kathleen Walsh has announced that the Executive Emergency Order for the mandatory evacuation of North and South Shore coastal areas which was signed into effect at 12:00 noon on October 28 has expired. The State of Emergency, which has been in effect since 12:00 noon on October 27 has been extended.

Acting Supervisor Walsh said, "Although the Evacuation Order has expired, I ask all residents who live in communities that experienced major flooding and storm damage to use every precaution when returning to your homes and businesses. There are still many down power lines, trees and other extremely hazardous debris, and some homes that have sustained significant damage may be dangerous to enter. We want everyone to stay safe, remain off the roads and allow emergency workers to get the clean up and power restoration job done as soon as possible."
