Blue Point, NY - A Blue Point neighborhood struck hard by Superstorm Sandy has received much needed relief from the Brookhaven Highway Department. Several issues have been resolved along Grandview Drive and Clearview Place due to a recently completed multifaceted project. The project involved bulkhead removal and replacement, along with road reconstruction and paving. Drainage issues were also addressed, including changing the grades of these roads to have water flow directly into rebuilt drains.

"This neighborhood was severely damaged by Superstorm Sandy and I want to thank Superintendent Losquadro and the Highway Department for making our concerns a priority," said Terri Quinn, a homeowner on Clearview Place. "He kept his promise to us and the work that was done has solved a lot of issues."

"This project will help protect the surrounding homes in this neighborhood from future storms," Superintendent Daniel P. Losquadro said. "The residents in this community withstood a lot of damage from Superstorm Sandy and I am very pleased the Highway Department was able to work with them to address their concerns."

"In one year's time, our bay front communities felt the brunt of Hurricane Irene and Super Storm Sandy," said Councilman Tim Mazzei. "Thanks to the tireless efforts our Highway Department and its Superintendent, I am happy to see that the damage from those two storms have now been repaired to a condition even better than before."
