Holtsville, NY - The word is out! The not-for-profit Brookhaven Wildlife Center is holding an extraordinary event to help care for the more than one hundred animals at the Holtsville Ecology Site. The event will have beautifully decorated winter wonderland displays, a vendor alley to shop and children can have their picture taken with Santa for a fee. Entry is three dollars per person and children three-years-old and younger are free. All proceeds will be used to pay for care for the animals.

When News 12 heard about the Holiday Spectacular, it sent reporter Christina Regnault to help spread the word to its Long Island viewers. The event is taking place from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. December 13th through 15th. The Ecology Site is located at 249 Buckley Road in Holtsville. "I want to thank News 12 for dedicating resources toward raising awareness for this event," said Daniel P. Losquadro, Brookhaven Town Superintendent of Highways. "The Holiday Spectacular will help provide the employees at the Ecology Site with the necessities they need to continue caring for these animals. This past weekend, almost two thousand visitors came out to the Ecology Site."

"I want to thank our Highway Superintendent Dan Losquadro for supporting everything we do here at the Ecology Site," said April Perry, Director of the Holtsville Ecology Site. "By providing the Brookhaven Wildlife Center the opportunity to use the Ecology Site for its fundraiser, he has given us the means to care for the more than one hundred injured and non-releasable animals."

"I commend the Brookhaven Wildlife Center for helping the Town provide care and feeding for our animals," said Supervisor Romaine. "I also thank our residents who stop by to enjoy the holiday displays and contribute to what is a great cause."
