Coram, NY – Brookhaven Town Highway Superintendent Daniel P. Losquadro and Councilman Kevin LaValle have announced the completion of a large paving project in the vicinity of Stagecoach Elementary School on Dare Road in Selden.

This project received federal funding secured by New York State Senator John Flanagan in the amount of $264,000 through the New York State Department of Transportation’s High Priority Project Program (HPP). The Brookhaven Highway Department covered the remaining $720,500.

In addition to the milling and paving of Dare Road, Hawkins Road, Hawthorne Street, Hemlock Street and Magnolia Drive, this project required the installation of new sidewalks, curbs, handicap-accessible ramps and basins.

“I was grateful to utilize grant funding to partially finance this long-overdue paving project,” said Superintendent Losquadro. “It was strategically completed during the Jewish holidays while school was closed to cause minimal disturbance to residents and motorists in the vicinity of Stagecoach Elementary School.”

“This is a great example of how different levels of government can work together to help provide funding for infrastructure projects throughout our community,” said Councilman LaValle. “I certainly want to thank Senator Flanagan and Highway Superintendent Losquadro for working with me to fully fund and complete this project.”
