Farmingville, NY - Brookhaven Town employees and residents did their part again this year to help save lives by turning out for the 46th annual blood drive at Town Hall. The event was co-sponsored by the Town and Long Island Blood Services (LIBS), a division of New York Blood Center, the nation's largest community-based non-profit blood collection and distribution organization. LIBS has been providing life-saving blood products and services to 50 hospitals throughout Nassau, Suffolk and Queens for close to 40 years. This year, 101 units of blood were donated.

Supervisor Romaine said, "Every time someone donates blood, they are helping their neighbors in need or even saving a life. I thank everyone who donated and helped to make the blood drive a big success."

For more information about blood donation and blood drives in your area, visit www.nybloodcenter.org. or call Long Island Blood Services at 1-800-933-BLOOD (2566).