Coram, NY - Mother Nature has not been kind to Brookhaven Town this winter season and it does not look like she has any intention of changing her ways any time soon. Snow possibly mixing with rain is expected to pass through the Town beginning late Wednesday night and continuing through Thursday.

According to the National Weather Service, 43.5 inches of snow have been recorded at Long Island MacArthur Airport in Islip from December through today. This is the second highest accumulation since record keeping began at the airport in 1981.

"A lot of hard work has gone into our snow removal operations," said Daniel P. Losquadro, Brookhaven Town Superintendent of Highways. "Although there have been many long nights, it is very gratifying to know the steps my administration and I have taken to ensure Town roads are cleared as efficiently and effectively as possible are working."

Councilman LaValle expressed his gratitude to the men and woman of the Highway Department stating, "As Highway liaison I have had the privilege to witness, first-hand, the exemplary work ethic of this administration and its employees. Given the extraordinary circumstances, what they have been able to accomplish is nothing short of miraculous."

"With the coming winter storm, the Brookhaven Highway Department will once again rise to the challenge and continue working until Town roads are safe and passable," Superintendent Losquadro said. "Our cleanup efforts have been well coordinated with Brookhaven Town's Parks and Waste Management Departments, as well as hundreds of committed outside contractors. Enough cannot be said about all the men and women who work through the night to get the job done for the benefit of all Brookhaven residents."
