Farmingville, NY - Councilwoman Jane Bonner has announced that the Town collected over 11,500 lbs. of e-waste during the annual e-waste drive which was held on March 23 at the Rose Caracappa Senior Center in Mount Sinai. This event was the most successful e-waste drive sponsored by Councilwoman Bonner. Hundreds of residents stopped by to drop off old electronics so they could be safely collected and recycled. Among the items collected were televisions, computers, copiers, printers, cell phones, laptops, fax machines and more.

"We all have old electronic items tucked away in drawers and cluttering our closets and basements and the E-Waste Drive is the perfect opportunity to safely recycle these unused electronic devices and help make Brookhaven a cleaner and greener place to live," said Councilwoman Bonner, "I thank all the residents who dropped off so many items that if not disposed of properly, could be harmful to the environment."
