Farmingville, NY – At the December 1 Town Board Meeting, Councilmen Kevin LaValle (third from left) and Neil Foley (fourth from left) recognized the Lake Ronkonkoma Improvement Group for their efforts to clean up the lake. The group, which was established in the summer of 2016, staged their first clean-up soon after and have organized numerous clean ups since then.

Councilman LaValle said, “The Lake Ronkonkoma Improvement Group have mobilized so many people from the community around the central goal of making the lake a better place for residents to enjoy. They have been very successful in doing it and I appreciate the hard work, dedication, and passion they have shown.”

Councilman Foley said, “Lake Ronkonkoma is a popular destination for local families and through the efforts of the Improvement Group, it’s been cleaned up. These community minded people set a great example for others to follow and I thank them for taking the lead to beautify the lake.”
