Farmingville, NY - On June 20, Councilwoman Valerie M. Cartright joined members of the Stony Brook Yacht Club Mariculture program during one of two recent project weekends. This is the second year that the Councilwoman has joined volunteers at the beach to further the overall project goal of reseeding the harbor. On this visit, the group was dividing sorted oysters and clam stock and placing them in the locations where they will be grown during the season. The Councilwoman also assisted with loading sand for use in the clam rafts which will be placed in the research zone.

"This program is a great resource for the harbor, the community and the youth who are learning valuable lessons about the aquatic ecosystem while participating. I appreciate the opportunity to work with the Stony Brook Yacht Club towards a cleaner, healthier harbor," said Councilwoman Cartright.
