Farmingville, NY - On November 28, Councilman Kevin LaValle and Councilman Neil Foley joined Highway Superintendent Dan Losquadro for the Annual Tree Lighting Ceremony at the Holtsville Wildlife & Ecology Center. Santa arrived to light the tree in a helicopter donated by a local flight school.

Councilman LaValle said, "The annual tree lighting at the Ecology Site is a great way to kick off the holiday season, and the best part is when you see the excitement and joy on the faces of the children."

"It's great fun to be part of this holiday tradition in Brookhaven," said Councilman Foley. "Seeing everyone together truly reminds me of what the holidays are really all about."

Superintendent Losquadro said, "This event offers so much for Brookhaven residents to enjoy. As always, I want to thank April Perry and the staff at the Ecology Site for their hard work toward making this an event people will remember. I also want to thank the Peter Borneman Flight School for donating the helicopter Santa flew in on and Carlo Bruceller, Jr. of Four Elements Entertainment, along with DJ's John and Russ for providing music. The Holtsville Fire Department also did an excellent job of controlling traffic and helping residents stay warm by providing a steady supply of hot chocolate. We certainly have a lot of caring, kind-hearted people in our community to be thankful for this holiday season."
