Farmingville, NY - On April 20, Supervisor Mark Lesko and Councilman Dan Panico joined members of the Girls Scouts of Suffolk County for a tree planting at Town Hall to commemorate Earth Day in Brookhaven Town. The Girl Scouts of Suffolk County, who are celebrating the 100th Anniversary of the Girl Scouts, have donated 100 Balsam Fir trees to be planted at town parks later in the month. Supervisor Lesko presented a certificate of appreciation to the scouts and their leader, Laura Rock Smith, for their donation and to recognize the anniversary.

"I thank the Girl Scouts of Suffolk County for their generous donation of trees that will help beautify our parks and I also congratulate them on the 100th Anniversary," said Supervisor Lesko.

"I congratulate the Girl Scouts of America on 100 years and thank these wonderful girls for planting a tree here at Brookhaven," commented Brookhaven Town Councilman Dan Panico.

The new cherry was planted by the pond at Brookhaven Town Hall, an area that lost six trees during Tropical Storm Irene in August of 2011.
