Farmingville, NY - At the December 7 Town Board meeting, Supervisor Mark Lesko, Councilwoman Jane Bonner and her colleagues on the Town Board honored students from Shoreham Wading River High School for winning the Jones Soda Label contest. The students designed labels for the popular brand as part of a photography class assignment. A Jones Soda spokesperson said that the company receives thousands of entries each year and 30 winners are selected each month to have their designs appear on the label

"I congratulate these very talented students for the winning such a prestigious contest," said Supervisor Lesko. "Having their artwork appear on the label of a well known national product is very exciting and they should all be proud of their achievement."

Councilwoman Jane Bonner, who represents District 2, where Shoreham-Wading River High School is located said, "It's great to see our young, local artists get recognized for their hard work and creativity. Winning this contest is a wonderful opportunity and opens the door wider for them as they pursue a career in the arts."
