Supervisor Romaine said, "More and more Brookhaven residents are saving money and doing their part for the environment by going green. If we all make a commitment, we could greatly reduce our carbon footprint and protect the environment for future generations. I encourage residents to come to the fair and learn how we can help make our world a cleaner, greener place to live."

There are vendor and sponsorship opportunities still available for the event. The Town of Brookhaven will promote and advertise the Green Energy and Sustainability Fair to thousands of people across Long Island in newspapers, radio, television, mass emails, internet and social media. Indoor and outdoor vendor opportunities, demonstration areas, tables and sponsorships are available.
